Human trafficking is often referred to as “modern day slavery,” and can be labor trafficking, sex trafficking, or both; and is a growing concern in our state, yet few are aware of the problems within their communities. Preventing Human Trafficking in South Carolina is a main focus area within the State’s plan to address the crime. Human trafficking is a hidden crime, and the first step to combating it is to identify victims so they can be rescued and help bring their perpetrators to justice. The more educated our communities, the closer we become in preventing individuals from being victimized. It takes various approaches including promoting the National Human Trafficking Hotline, awareness posters, billboards, and special events that generate dialogue in our communities.

Objectives (What you will learn):
• What is considered human trafficking?
• Indicators of human trafficking: Identify the signs of potential trafficking situations

10th Annual “Out of Their Hands”

The Tenth Annual “Out of Their Hands” Spring Blitz began April 1, 2016 in South Carolina. Strict enforcement coupled with a strong media message occurred throughout April until April 30, 2016. During that time, the South Carolina Alcohol Enforcement Teams and their enforcement and education partners engaged community residents, businesses, and others to deny alcohol access to those youth who are less than 21 years of age. The campaign website is at http://scoutoftheirhands.org and it is a crucial part of the media success with the campaign.
